

ADS - Apocalypse Delivery Service

A Death Stranding-inspired solo journaling TTRPG about delivering packages determine your quota - your goal is then to deliver your quota PLUS one more “meaningful” delivery to end the game

THINGS TO WRITE

before you depart

- what the package is (read the label)
- who/where it's going to
- who/where it's from

on your journey

- anything you see/think about (??? hone this later)
- any meaning the delivery has for you after completing the delivery

- why you think the item was important to them thinking probably no stats (at least for this version) give players a list of 20? items/locations/people/deliveries have them roll a d20 to determine their path

MAYBE would extend this to a d100 if I wasn't trying to prototype this quickly could also do cards for this but I'm thinking aesthetically it should feel a bit crunchier (even if the actual gameplay isn't that crunchy)

GAME STARTUP

introduce yourself

- name
- how long you've been working for ADS
- why you started working for ADS
- any other details you find important other journaling games to look at for reference:

- thousand year old vampire

extra mechanics (probably not for one-pager)

- a RIVAL deliveryperson
- “challenges” for each delivery
 - maybe stat-related
- GEAR how did I forget about gear until just now what makes this NOT just a death stranding ripoff?

- why shouldn't it be
- also the main character has a personality
 - maybe formalize that in character creation?

SECTIONS:

The World/The Game

Character Creation

Deliveries

The Journey

The Climax

CHARACTER CREATION

- simplified for the one-pager
- name, time of employment, one personality trait, that's it\ generally, focus on the personal rather than the environmental. the apocalypse makes the deliveries more emotionally meaningful, rather than more difficult to complete (in this iteration) possibly music component? real time deliveries - you journal for as long as the song lasts?

this may also not be a one-pager thing lol offer option to name the apocalyptic event? describe the world? but maybe that detracts from the connection part of it